YOUR microfilm can now be put in BOOK FORM

at LOW COST

The same processes used in University Microfilms' O-P Book program can now be called upon to convert your microfilm to book form.

The methods are relatively simple—and surprisingly inexpensive. Reproduction is made from negative film. The cost is on the basis of 7 cents per foot of enlarged copy on 12" wide book paper—plus ¾c per page for cutting and glue-binding in a paper cover. Total per page costs depend on microfilm format, enlargement, etc. Minimum charge—$3.00.

Quotations gladly supplied before proceeding with work—simply send your film, and advise if you want more than one copy.

UNIVERSITY MICROFILMS, INC.
313 N. FIRST STREET, ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN
The educational scope of THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND leads many to call it "The University of the World." In addition to over 20,000 students enrolled on its College Park and Baltimore campuses, the University has more than 200 overseas education centers on four continents around the globe enrolling 20,000 members of our armed forces. At home, Maryland is one of the nation's leading state universities. In May, 1958, the University dedicated its new $2,500,000 McKeldin Library. Housing the University's main collection, this library seats 2,000 students, and has a capacity of 1,000,000 volumes. Here you'll find high-quality Globe-Wernicke study carrels, desks, steel book stacks and other library equipment. If you are considering a new library, or expanding or modernizing an existing one, consult Globe-Wernicke's free Library Planning Service. Write today for complete information. Dept.
