How students at Arizona State use the University of Michigan Library.

Arizona State is building their library from the University of Michigan Undergraduate Library shelflist. Whenever they need books on any subject, they check the shelflist to see what books the University of Michigan is using. Then they can order the same books for themselves.

The University of Michigan Library is considered the finest undergraduate collection in the country. With funds provided by a foundation grant, a staff of librarians spent years reviewing more than 400,000 books before 57,000 were finally selected.

A costly book-selection project like this is out of the question for an individual school such as Arizona State. But with the UM shelflist, it is possible for them to offer the same 57,000 carefully selected titles.

What Arizona State is doing, any college can do. If you're starting or expanding your library, it's a sure way to get the best books on every subject. Without screening thousands of books yourself.

At University Microfilms, all 57,000 file cards from the University of Michigan shelflist are available. For $100, you can get the entire file on 35 mm. microfilm. For $875, you can get bound volumes with six cards to a page. Or you can get 3" x 5" file cards in shelflist order for $1900.

If you have any questions on starting or expanding your library—or for more information about the University of Michigan shelflist, please write:

Catalogue of European Printed Books

INDIA OFFICE LIBRARY

COMMONWEALTH RELATIONS OFFICE, LONDON

We are privileged to publish this catalogue of European printed books in the important collection of the India Office Library. Mr. S. C. Sutton, the Librarian, has provided us with the following statement:

The European printed books in the India Office Library — about 90,000 volumes built up over a period of 160 years — comprise all the Library's works in English and other European languages with the exception of translations from oriental languages, which are grouped in their original language collections. The scope of the European books is Indology, that is, they cover every aspect of the history and culture of the peoples of the Indian subcontinent and contiguous territories of related culture. The collection is particularly strong in art and archaeology, history, philosophy and religion, linguistics, anthropology, and economics and politics. Many British and Indian official publications are included.

Accessions until 1936 are included in an Author Catalogue in sheaf form, in which entries from twenty-two volumes of uncumulated printed catalogues and supplementary accessions lists were pasted up in a single alphabetical sequence. In 1936 the cataloguing system was reorganized, and all accessions since that date have been entered in two card catalogues, one Author, the other Subject (the latter using Library of Congress headings extensively modified and elaborated to suit the Library's special interests). The older books, found only in the sheaf catalogue, are being gradually incorporated into the card catalogue. About one-fifth of this work has been done so far. The present publication includes the sheaf Author catalogue and the Author and Subject card catalogues.

The Library's holdings of periodical publications are recorded in a separate sequence in the Author card catalogue.
