
About the Contributors

DANIEL D. BARRON is a graduate of Appalachian State University and has a Master's, Advanced Master's, and Doctorate from Florida State University. His teaching and research areas are school media program development, distance education, applications of complementary technologies for education and community development, and the education and information functions of libraries. Mr. Barron has been a consultant in the People's Republic of China, New Zealand, and South Africa. He currently is working with the Independent Development Trust in South Africa to expand its distance education potential for students, teachers, administrators, and the general citizenry of South Africa. Mr. Barron is a recipient of Social Issues Resource Series/South Carolina Library Association Intellectual Freedom Award, Association for Educational Communications and Technology of South Carolina's Media Person of the Year, a Lilly Teaching Fellow, and is featured in the 1995 USC President's Report.

BERT R. BOYCE is Dean and Professor at the School of Library and Information Science at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He is an author of two books and numerous papers in the area of information science and has co-authored five papers on bookmobile issues.

JUDITH I. BOYCE is the Youth Services Librarian at the West Baton Rouge Parish Library in Port Allen, Louisiana. She has worked as a Library Consultant for the State Library of Louisiana and as the Director of the Jefferson Parish Public Library. Among her publications are six papers on bookmobile issues. Ms. Boyce was co-investigator with Bert R. Boyce on The Bookmobile, a Service Mechanism for the Nineties? a Council on Library Resources Cooperative Research Grant (January 1989 - May 1990).

JOHN CHRISTENSON is Executive Director of the Traverse des Sioux Library System in Mankato, Minnesota. He writes a regular column, "The Cracker Barrel," for the bimonthly Rural and Small Libraries Newsletter (Ohio, 1994).

His most recent publication was an article for the American Indian Library Association Newsletter (Fall, 1994) "Native American Recording Resources." Mr. Christenson organized the Association of Specialized and Cooperative Library Agencies Rural Library Services Discussion Group and has served on the Public Library Association Small and Medium Sized Library Section Rural Library Services Committee, the Public Library Association Rural and Small Libraries Special Committee, and currently chairs the Public Library Association Liaison with Other National Organizations Committee. Mr. Christenson is on the OCLC Users Council representing Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota. He was the mayor of Good Thunder, Minnesota (population 561) for fourteen years.

STEVE CISLER is a Senior Scientist in the library at Apple Computer, Inc. in Cupertino, California. He manages the Apple Library of Tomorrow program and is involved in Internet evangelism inside and outside of the company. He runs a computer conference on information on The WELL, an online service in Sausalito, California. He writes for Library Journal, Whole Earth Review, Wired, and The Apple Library Users Group Newsletter.

LINDA M. GHELFI is Assistant Director for Rural Development Situation and Outlook of the Rural Economy Division, ERS, USDA. Ms. Ghelfi currently serves as the editor of Rural Development Perspectives and the editor of Rural Conditions and Trends. Previously, she was an economist in the Division's Human Resources and Income Branch. She has published several articles and ERS reports on factors affecting the income and earnings of rural residents, the quality of rural housing, and the cost of living in rural areas.

GLEN E. HOLT has served as Executive Director of the St. Louis Public Library for the past eight years. During that time, public funding has increased 165 percent enabling the expansion of all services and a ten-year program to rebuild all the city's library facilities. Mr. Holt has an M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago with specialties in history and urban studies. He publishes extensively on public library topics, including a regular column on library finance in The Bottom Line. Mr. Holt currently serves on OCLC's Public Library Advisory Committee and IBM's INFORMA Steering Committee. His most recent professional presentations have been to colleagues in the Kentucky Library Association, the Missouri Library Association, the Board of Directors and administrators at Toronto Metropolitan Reference Library, the Public Library Association, and the American Library Association.

JAN ISON is Executive Director of Lincoln Trail Libraries System, a multitype library organization of 115 members, headquartered in Champaign, Illinois. She was the chair of the ALA/ASCLA committee that developed the Standards for Cooperative Multitype Library Organizations and the chair of the committee that developed the Standards for the Services of Illinois Multitype Library Systems. Ms. Ison has authored several articles on multitype library cooperation and interlibrary resource sharing and is a frequent speaker on the topic of library cooperation.

PATRICIA LACAILLE John is Coordinator of the Rural Information Center, National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, Maryland. She is a current member of the National Rural Development Council and the American Library Association Rural Library Services Committee. She is the current chair of both the ALA Federal Librarians Roundtable Personnel Committee and the Federal Library and Information Center Committee Personnel Working Group. Ms. John received an M.L. from the University of Washington and an M.A. from George Washington University.

SARA MILLS MAZIE is Acting Associate Director of the Rural Economy Division, Economic Research Service (ERS), USDA. The Rural Economy Division conducts research on conditions and trends in agriculture and rural America and on the forces driving those trends. Ms. Mazie previously served as editor of Rural Development Perspectives, the ERS journal that brings the results of recent rural research to policymakers, program administrators, and others working in the field of rural development. She also was the editor of Rural Conditions and Trends, ERS's journal that presents current information on economic, demographic, and socioeconomic conditions in rural America. She has contributed many articles to those publications and others. Earlier, Ms. Mazie was a policy analyst in the Office of Rural Development Policy at USDA where, for several years, she was involved in the preparation of the National Rural Development Strategy.

MARK D. MERRIFIELD is Director of Marketing and Development for Martin Library, located in York Pennsylvania. He received an M.L.S. from the University of Maryland. He has served as Director of the Adams County Library System, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, and in various positions for the Alexandria, Virginia, public library. A member of ALA, PLA, and the Information Futures Institute, Mr. Merrifield has made presentations to a number of groups including the National Bookmobile Conference (1991 and 1994), the Rural Libraries Conference (1993), and the Public Library Association Conference (1994).

BERNARD VAVREK is Professor of Library Science and Director of the Center for the Study of Rural Librarianship at Clarion University of Pennsylvania. He instructs in a variety of courses related to rural library services, marketing, computers, and networking. Mr. Vavrek has written widely in the library literature and recently organized the Information Futures Institute, of which he is the Director.

RISTINA WIGG is Children's Services Consultant at the Mid-Hudson Library System, Poughkeepsie, New York, where she advises public libraries on program creation, collection development, and training of staff and volunteers. She edited the 1987 publication Libraries Serving Youth: Directions for Service in the 1990s for the Youth Services Section of the New York Library Association and served as guest editor for the Spring 1988 issue of The Bookmark (University of the State of New York/The State Education Department/The New York State Library) on "Libraries Serving Youth: Issues and Programs in New York State." Ms. Wigg taught several classes in Children's Literature and Young Adult Services for the School of Information Science and Policy, State University of New York at Albany. She serves as chairperson of the New York Library Association Legislative Committee.

This Page Intentionally Left Blank